

91ST YEAR

THE LINCOLN CELEBRATION

ONE OF THE GREAT OCCASIONS
OF THIS TOWN

Great Address Made by Hon. James
T. McCleary, Originator of Lincoln Highway.

The One Hundredth Anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was a great day for Gettysburg. It was the largest gathering of our own people for many years. Bräu Chapel being crowded from the stage to the end of the annex, as also the gallery. The exercises proved to be such as to fittingly mark the occasion and the orator of the day, Hon. James T. McCleary, delivered an address that our people unanimously declared was one of the greatest ever delivered in this place.

Fully seven hundred people crowded Bräu Chapel. There were about seventy-five veterans on the stage, the right section was reserved for the Citizens Band, Sons of Veterans and other organizations attending in a body. Dr. H. W. McKnight presided, Congressman Lafear being unable to be present.

The exercises opened with prayer by Dr. S. G. Hefelbower, President of Gettysburg College. Then the audience led by the Citizens Band sang America. Judge S. McC. Swope read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. The presiding officer then introduced Hon. James T. McCleary, referring to him as the originator of the idea of the Lincoln highway.

Mr. McCleary in opening his address referred to the great part Gettysburg stands for in the life of Lincoln by reason of the immortal address here spoken, and that there was no spot in the world upon which he more desired to be upon the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Lincoln than Gettysburg, and that the invitation to come here on this occasion had given him unspeakable joy. He touched upon the appropriateness of the Lincoln Way from the White House where he lived to Gettysburg where he delivered his great speech, and the fact that the speaker had left Washington to come to Gettysburg yesterday, arrived to-day and could not return until to-morrow illustrated the need of the Lincoln Way.

Taking up his theme for the occasion Mr. McCleary in part said:

"Yesterday the Chief Magistrate of this nation left his weighty duties at Washington and journeyed westward hundreds of miles in order that today me might stand with bared head beside a little log cabin in Kentucky and voice the reverence and affection of his countrymen for him who, a hundred years ago today, was born in that humble home."

"Yesterday the ambassadors of two mighty nations, Great Britain and France, the ancient monarchy and young republic, left their responsible posts at our nation's capitol in order that today at the capitol of Illinois they might express the world's respectful remembrance of him whose ashes for more than forty years have there reposed."

"In every State of the union, north and south, and in every country on earth, men are today assembled to do honor to him the centennial of whose birth we have met to celebrate."

"What did this man do that was sufficiently great to command the whole world's attention, sufficiently good to command the whole world's approval, and sufficiently enduring in its effects to command the world's remembrance? Why should the whole world honor and cherish the name and fame of Abraham Lincoln?"

"He was President of the United States. This is one of the highest honors that can be conferred on any man, to be chosen as the Chief Magistrate of this great nation out of all of its millions of good and able men. But in the course of our national history more than a score of other Americans have thus been chosen. How many of them have been loved and honored as much, or will be remembered as long, as Lincoln? Without having attained the presidency he could not have done his great work, but somehow more than the occupancy of that exalted station is required to explain the world's opinion of him."

"He rose from penury to power. The fact that he did thus rise affords encouragement to the unnumbered host of his young countrymen, born in poverty and now getting their education in the college of hard knocks. In this land of opportunity it is the rule rather than the exception, that the men of power have been the children of poverty. Lincoln's growth from the lowly cabin to the stately White House is one of the things in his career in which his countrymen take pride and pleasure, but clearly it is only one of the elements that have given rise to the admiration and affection in which he is held."

"He was one of the world's great orators. His five minute address on yonder hill, dedicating a portion of this sacred soil as the final resting place of those who here died that the nation might live, will always be regarded as a literary classic and an oratorical gem. The names of Demosthenes and Cicero come down to us as a reminder that oratory had always been honored among men and constitutes one of the pathways to fame. Lincoln's ability for strong and clear and persuasive speech undoubtedly constitutes another element of the immortality of his name."

"He was a lawyer who aimed to achieve success not so much through knowledge of the precedents of the Courts, high and honorable and useful though they be, as by devotion to the principles of inherent equity and justice, and with him justice was always tempered by mercy. Joined to his clear brain was his kindly heart. It is more than probable that in the encomiums passed upon him to-day in all parts of the world the dominant note of affection will be to his tender and kindly heart."

"These things to which I have referred, and others which might be named, constitute claims to our admiration and respect. But something further is required to justify our affection. This is found in the goodness of his greatness and the greatness of his goodness."

"Long was the period of Lincoln's apprenticeship. He was almost fifty years of age before his name was generally known beyond the confines of the state in which he lived. Those were not idle years. During that period he was getting ready for the opportunity to do great things when his countrymen should call him to the headship of the nation. He had thoroughly thought out two great propositions, the essential wrongfulness of human slavery and the inestimable value to this country and the world of the nation of the American states. His was the chief glory of 'a nation saved, a race delivered.'

In conclusion he told the story of the three men who had been bounding the United States and the last had declared that the United States was bounded on the north by the Aurora borealis, on the south by the procession of the seasons, on the east by primeval chaos and on the west by the Judgment day, and the speaker declared that the world was traveling toward that day, in which not the United States of America, but the United States of the earth would exist and that federation would owe much to the life of the Martyred President, whose message had been Union, peace on earth, goodwill toward men.

After music by the band, Edwin M. Amies, Past Commander of the Sons of Veterans, of Altoona, was introduced and spoke on Lincoln the Emancipator.

Star Spangled Banner was then sung by the audience led by the band and the ceremonies came to an end with the benediction by Rev. H. N. Minnich.

The celebration was a great success and credit to Gettysburg. It had been decided upon at a town meeting several months ago. Those in charge of the arrangements were as follows:

Committee on Program, Rev. J. A. Clutz, D. D., Dr. E. S. Breidenbaugh and John D. Keith, Esq.

Committee on Place, Dr. E. S. Breidenbaugh, Wm. McSherry, Esq., and H. T. Weaver.

Committee on Finance, H. T. Weaver, John D. Keith, Esq., and Wm. McSherry, Esq.

Sons of Veterans Entertain.

The Sons of Veterans delightfully entertained the veterans of Corporal Skelly Post, G. A. R., and other friends on the Lincoln Anniversary last Friday evening.

The exercises were presided over by John D. Keith, Esq., and opening prayer was made by Rev. D. W. Woods, after which America was sung.

Edwin M. Amies, Esq., made the oration and spoke feelingly of the veterans and the message of devotion to country and patriotism they presented to the country and how that message would be preserved by the Sons of Veterans.

After music Hon. James T. McCleary was introduced and briefly spoke, recalling the story of the Great Stone Face carved by the elements in the rocks of the mountain side and the farmer who planted his home where the face was always visible and in time grew to resemble the face and drew a striking parallel to the great Lincoln, whose memory should be cherished, so that the nation would grow great in his virtues. So that we would be broad and not narrow, able to preserve the Union.

After singing "Star Spangled Banner" Rev. Woods pronounced the benediction.

The turkey dinner then followed with the table loaded down with good things, and thoroughly enjoyed by all of the guests.

A MEMORIAL BUILDING

IS MADE POSSIBLE BY THE LEGISLATURE OF PENNSYLVANIA
Will the Commission Under Act of 1907 Erect on Battlefield a Memorial Building.

Gettysburg can have a building, a memorial temple as a tribute to the memory of the Pennsylvania soldiers who fought at Gettysburg that their country might be preserved—if the Gettysburg battlefield Memorial Commission created under the Act of 1907 will decide to adopt the design of a building or temple.

The Commission had an amendment to the Act creating them presented to the Legislature to enable them to place the memorial on United States land, or to buy land for a site. The editor of the Compiler was in Harrisburg on the day the bill was first read in the Senate and in a conference with Senator Wm. A. Martin of this district and others it was concluded to ask the Legislature to express itself as upon the matter of a building as a design for the memorial. Accordingly Senator Martin when his bill was under consideration in the Senate proposed an amendment that "such memorial may be a building." This amendment was unanimously agreed to and the bill so amended passed the Senate. Hon. James C. Cole secured friends in the House for the amended bill and the Senate amended bill passed the House instead of original bill presented there. The legislative mind of both the Senate and House unanimously agreed that the memorial to the soldiers of Pennsylvania on the battlefield of Gettysburg may be a building, and last Thursday Governor Street made this bill a law with his signature.

The history of legislation in Pennsylvania clearly proves that the legislative mind has contemplated as the great memorial to her soldiers, a building or temple. The memorial proposed for the Pennsylvania Reserves was specifically designated as a building, and this bill passed but was vetoed. Later $250,000 was appropriated for a memorial structure, and a building was then contemplated, but $100,000 of the appropriation was lopped off by the executive, and the act never became operative. The act of 1907 followed the language of the prior act, and the legislative mind clearly intended that the memorial structure could take the form of a building, but this construction the Attorney General declared was not clearly expressed, but the amending act now in force clearly declares that the memorial may be a building, and it is up to the commission to declare that it shall be a building.

A Greek temple would be a unique design, and be distinctive from everything else on the field. Its walls could be bronze tablets, giving the names of the 22,000 Pennsylvania soldiers who fought here. It could be designed to give room for medallion heads of the commanders, or other decorative memorials. It could have a record hall, in which might be gathered records of these Pennsylvania soldiers, and also be built to contain a collection of every accoutrement of war at the battle, and thus tell a story that is told nowhere else on this field.

Will the commission give the Gettysburg battlefield the memorial building?

PICTURE EXHIBITION.

The success of the exhibition of Copley Prints given in the Assembly Room of the Meade Building, Feb. 5 and 6 was most gratifying to all concerned. The prints, which represent the best that is to be found in American Art, were viewed and enjoyed by many people, and specially original paintings by our home artists Charles Morris Young and Lyton Buehler, who have taken such high rank in the world of art.

Art exhibitions of so high an order serve not merely to entertain, but have an educational value that cannot be overestimated. The teachers and pupils of the High School are very grateful to Miss Emily Horner for this fine display of high class art, also to the newspapers whose aid was most liberally and cheerfully given. The sum realized will be expended in the interest of the Art department of High School.

EDUCATIONAL SPEAKING--

A full account is given at the School Directors' Convention of the situation of the schools in the Commonwealth, one of the most important subjects in our country at the present time. The legislature of Pennsylvania, a soul under ten years old, has passed the new school code, which makes many changes in laws and adds some new provisions where a new set of rules or laws in winter or summer changes are made. The code is the work of the best educators in Pennsylvania, it is doubtful whether it could be improved upon by the legislature in any particular, as it is the deliberate work of experts who know more of the subject than any one else. The public should get itself into a receptive attitude for the new code and the practical changes are used. Insuring of school property was advised. John H. Peters said their board held the teachers largely responsible for their supplies. Text books were very largely used in some districts. Have the children know the book they use this session will be in their hands next year, and that will help to keep the books in better condition. Teach the child the habits of economy, and save waste. Mr. Rice said, Be careful of the materials, buy the best you can for the money. Cheap lead pencils are expensive and do not encourage in the pupils work. E. E. Jacobs of Hamilton said, Directors do not exact the things from the teachers, that they should. We are too shabby minded. Take comparisons, teach the children.

Prof. H. A. Roth was appointed to take charge of his new task and as sign the speakers.

Convention closed at 1 P.M. with music "The Old Wild West" and "Blue and the Beloved." "The Minnie Tales of Our Public Schools" was given in the period of the preceding with the regular exercises.

Prof. H. A. Roth was appointed to take charge of his new task and as sign the speakers.

What Would the People Do for Directors if Day Enough Came to Pay the Sheriff in School Funds in this Year? A Little in a Novelty of Years?" Mr. Knouse of Arendtsville responded and said it would depend on circumstances, where there is a heavy debt, length of time, Prof. Roth said some districts had wide experiences in this matter and would be glad to hear from them. Berwick Borough did not lay taxes but borrowed money.

Should the School Board Consist of Five Members or Six?" H. D. Bream of Cumberland, answered and said six. But for deadlocks an odd number would be better.

Supt. Schaeffer reported 146 deadlocks in school boards last year.

"Why do not Directors Visit Schools More Frequently?" J. H. Peters of Bendersville, said: Directors are not interested in the discharge of their duties. Some fear the idea of doing something—to address the schools. You want to visit the schools and move around among the children and see what is being done. Henry Butler of Conowingo, said their schools are visited in a body, with teachers and sometimes some pupils. Suggestions were made why directors need to visit the schools.

"How to Select Good Teachers?" W. E. Kapp of Biglerville answered by offering the safest plan, when you have a good teacher, keep him.

"Can school directors allow a greater per cent. for collecting taxes than the law allows?" In general discussion, this was a question of law.

"How can a director best help the schools when visiting?" H. F. Stambaugh said it depends a great deal upon a director's ability. Show that you are interested by going around the room and see what is going on. Look after the routine work. In many cases it were better that director's make no address.

"How about exchanging presents with teacher and pupils?" Mrs. Dale Heiges of Biglerville answered and said it was not allowed in some districts. It is well to do this in many cases, might be just as well to abolish it entirely.

Music, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The next period was the election of officers the result was: Pres. W. F. Thomas, Tyrone, Pa.; Vice Pres. W. E. Kapp, Biglerville; Josiah W. Priester, Mifflin, Pa.; Secy. Harry F. Staybaugh, Berwick, Pa.; Treas. J. Under, Susse, Pa.

"Waste in the School Room," by

Horace G. Comfort, of Arendtsville. He prefaced his remarks by an illustration of the old time teacher, the teacher who roamed around. The road to learning at that time was hard study. Look now twenty-five years ago, compare the advancement in improvement, lack of books was the drawback in those days. To-day we scarcely need anything, free text books, and everything as free as water for our children's education, we do not appreciate our position. The lack of care of school property was referred to and question asked, Whose fault is this? It does not always depend upon the teacher. A little better care of school property will be better appreciated by everybody.

Chas. M. McIntire said the question applies to the teacher, the parent, and the tutor. There is too much waste. Teachers have too many recitations and nothing for supervision, a waste of too much time. Mr. Much of Berwick said too much time is wasted since we take the supplies. Their pupils use both sides of the tablet. Mr. Stambaugh said the waste was due largely to the teacher, children are not all alike, teachers should keep a record of supplies and children knowing this will be taught to be more careful. Directors need to inquire into this matter and see how their supplies are used. Insuring of school property was advised. John H. Peters said their board held the teachers largely responsible for their supplies. Text books were very largely used in some districts. Mr. Stambaugh said the waste was due largely to the teacher, children are not all alike, teachers should keep a record of supplies and children knowing this will be taught to be more careful.

Directors need to inquire into this matter and see how their supplies are used. Insuring of school property was advised. John H. Peters said their board held the teachers largely responsible for their supplies. Text books were very largely used in some districts. Have the children know the book they use this session will be in their hands next year, and that will help to keep the books in better condition. Teach the child the habits of economy, and save waste. Mr. Rice said, Be careful of the materials, buy the best you can for the money. Cheap lead pencils are expensive and do not encourage in the pupils work. E. E. Jacobs of Hamilton said, Directors do not exact the things from the teachers, that they should. We are too shabby minded. Take comparisons, teach the children.

Monday Evening.

The Convention opened at 8 P.M., with music by the Atwoodistic Glee Club. A section was voted to defray expenses of delegate to the State Convention at Harrisburg. Motion was made and said it would depend on circumstances, where there is a heavy debt, length of time, Prof. Roth said some districts had wide experiences in this matter and would be glad to hear from them. Berwick Borough did not lay taxes but borrowed money.

Should the School Board Consist of Five Members or Six?" H. D. Bream of Cumberland, answered and said six. But for deadlocks an odd number would be better.

Supt. Schaeffer reported 146 deadlocks in school boards last year.

"Why do not Directors Visit Schools More Frequently?" J. H. Peters of Bendersville, said: Directors are not interested in the discharge of their duties. Some fear the idea of doing something—to address the schools. You want to visit the schools and move around among the children and see what is being done. Henry Butler of Conowingo, said their schools are visited in a body, with teachers and sometimes some pupils. Suggestions were made why directors need to visit the schools.

"How to Select Good Teachers?" W. E. Kapp of Biglerville answered by offering the safest plan, when you have a good teacher, keep him.

"Can school directors allow a greater per cent. for collecting taxes than the law allows?" In general discussion, this was a question of law.

"How can a director best help the schools when visiting?" H. F. Stambaugh said it depends a great deal upon a director's ability. Show that you are interested by going around the room and see what is going on. Look after the routine work. In many cases it were better that director's make no address.

"How about exchanging presents with teacher and pupils?" Mrs. Dale Heiges of Biglerville answered and said it was not allowed in some districts. It is well to do this in many cases, might be just as well to abolish it entirely.

Music, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The next period was the election of officers the result was: Pres. W. F. Thomas, Tyrone, Pa.; Vice Pres. W. E. Kapp, Biglerville; Josiah W. Priester, Mifflin, Pa.; Secy. Harry F. Staybaugh, Berwick, Pa.; Treas. J. Under, Susse, Pa.

The first speaker in discussion was

"Waste in the School Room," by

Horace G. Comfort, of Arendtsville. He prefaced his remarks by an illustration of the old time teacher, the teacher who roamed around. The road to learning at that time was hard study. Look now twenty-five years ago, compare the advancement in improvement, lack of books was the drawback in those days. To-day we scarcely need anything, free text books, and everything as free as water for our children's education, we do not appreciate our position. The lack of care of school property was referred to and question asked, Whose fault is this? It does not always depend upon the teacher. A little better care of school property will be better appreciated by everybody.

Chas. M. McIntire said the question applies to the teacher, the parent, and the tutor. There is too much waste.

Teachers have too many recitations and nothing for supervision, a waste of too much time. Mr. Much of Berwick said too much time is wasted since we take the supplies. Their pupils use both sides of the tablet. Mr. Stambaugh said the waste was due largely to the teacher, children are not all alike, teachers should keep a record of supplies and children knowing this will be taught to be more careful.

Directors need to inquire into this matter and see how their supplies are used. Insuring of school property was advised. John H. How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's Emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking of school director is not a very desirable one, it requires a good deal of sacrifice, you realize your obligations, in furthering the interests of your child, you are interested in the welfare of the school, and the cause of education, and you are there exposed to criticism, and you are expected to make sacrifices, I repeat it is not a very desirable position. Children must have the proper education for the race of life. Directors who have not the time for the interest of the schools are not the men to elect to that position. More work is expected from the rural directors than in our cities and larger towns, there they have supervisory principals who are experts in their work, and practically take your place. Economy in many cases means cheapness, that is a waste of money, we want a school which will give the greatest return for money spent. Directors must study the attitude they bear to the school in the discharge of their duties and the great cause of education. You must realize that schools are worth while, you must give to your children education and health, you must be governed by the conditions of your districts, all districts are able to spend more money for the education of your children. A liberal expenditure of money is not expensive, it spent in the right way and for the right educational facilities.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS MEET

Tuesday Afternoon.

The last session of the Association was called at 1:45 p.m. Just before adjournment at noon the enrollment was completed with 118 Directors in attendance during the two days of the sessions. Music, "America." The convention was favored with a vocal solo by Miss Mary Emmett, of New Oxford, Miss Maude Bucher at the organ.

Hon. R. M. McNeal took up the first question—"The Educational Phase of School Administration." The speaker regretted that the queries were not answered in regular order, as that was an important phase in these conventions. Much good comes of these questions that are sent in, if nothing else it tends to call out a full general discussion. We need men and women of scholastic ability, of marked intelligence to take care of our boys and girls. We want men of strength and character to inspire our children in the work of education. You are to use great judgment, great care, and you have a case of great responsibility in the selecting of your teachers. It is not a small matter to instill the minds of the pupils with good knowledge and you have a serious proposition in securing good, qualified teachers. The primary teacher will do better work who has a broad educational training, who will work with a broad, liberal knowledge of what work is to be done. A great difficulty is to have directors see the difference of ability in teachers. Conditions are favorable but one succeeds and the other fails. Directors must have another way to distinguish this ability otherwise than that seen on paper. He described the advantage of the township high school and the influence it soon exerts in its community. He pointed out very plainly the scholastic attainments that must be observed in the selecting of good qualified teachers for our schools. Too many teachers are interested in the salary attached to the position. School Boards should steer clear of a teacher of this character. An interested teacher will attend all educational meetings, and be active to promote the efficiency of the schools. The teacher who possesses the spirit to absent himself from all these meetings deserves to be put out of the school work. You want moral and physical spirit in the school. Teachers find fault often than they commend. Personal interviews are advisable as to efficiency in the teacher. The County Superintendent can help very much in this matter.

Vocal Solo by Miss Emmett. Superintendent Rapp concluded his talk for the afternoon on "If I were a School Director—and Could." He told the Directors he found by conversation and from the discussions that a good wholesome feeling exists in the schools of Adams county. He would not employ a teacher that was not worth $50 a month. Incompetence and low salaries go hand in hand. He would not abolish honest poverty rather than great wealth. Districts have a tax of 20 mills and not able to maintain good teachers. Pennsylvania's rich enough to pay all her teachers in full. New England is more liberal in her appropriations for the public schools. In Massachusetts a public library is a complement to the public school. The speaker culminated the training and fame of Daniel Webster. The new school code will help to consolidate and centralize the schools. The best place to bring up a boy is on the farm, if wisely managed. The little red school house must be born again. The speaker pictured a centralized school in Tennessee and hoped for one in the fat soil of Eastern Pennsylvania. We need more athletes, trees, ventilation, black boards, good janitors and well-kept grounds. A teacher who would not strive to improve qualifications should not be employed a second term.
